

The green frog jumped on my head and I caught him in my hands.

and

nmod: poss: is a phrase where a word possesses a noun

Amod: frog is being described as green

Det: The head of a noun phrase conj: two elements connected by a conjunction obj: object of a preposition

cc: a coordination, or and conjunction and its element doj: the object of a verb phrase

The green frog jumped on my head and I caught him in my hands

Predicate: on my head, in my hands

Arg0: the green frog

Arg 1: my (me)

Arg 2: on my head,

Arg 3: and I caught him

LOC: on my head

From easiest to hardest to understand,

I rank the methods PSG, SRL

Parse, then dependency parse. I rank dependency parse at the bottom because it is not very intuitive.

The other two methods are intuitive but not as thorough as the dependency parse.